dedication

Dr. James L. Dennis

The Caduceus staff is pleased to dedicate this issue of "Changes '76" to Dr. James L. Dennis, a man who has contributed years of faithful service not only to the University of Arkansas Medical Center but also to the profession of medicine as a whole. Dr. Dennis, a Professor of Pediatrics from 1962-1964, has occupied the Medical Center's highest and most honored position since 1970, when he became Vice President for Health Sciences of the then—University of Arkansas Medical Center. The intervening years have marked many changes in our institution, both in the areas of medicine and of service, and Dr. Dennis has been both instigator and participant in many of these changes. During his tenure, the concepts of "renovation", "creation", and "implementation" have been foremost among administrators, and even now we are seeing the fruits of labor which Dr. Dennis and others like him have expended. These changes in programs, facilities and philosophies which are now evident around us are the results of years of planning and research which are even now continuing.

One of the most dramatic and most evident changes of all was initiated in November of 1974, when Dr. Dennis and Governor Dale Bumpers broke ground for the University's new teaching facility, Education II. This facility will enable the Medical Center to more ably carry out its dual role of teaching and service in the State of Arkansas. Dr. Dennis had also aided in obtaining millions of dollars in grants and aid for the renovation of existing facilities, the creation of new programs and the implementation of plans to realize these goals. In July of 1975, Dr. Dennis' abilities, service and dedication were further recognized, as he was named Chancellor of the newly reorganized and re-named University of Arkansas Medical Sciences Campus. It is with great pride that we, too, recognize Dr. Dennis and his substantial contributions to the greatness of our Medical Sciences Campus, and we salute his efforts to make this institution one which excels in all manners of education and service to the people of Arkansas.

Once again, the dominant new face of the year has been the unfolding of Education II, the 131,000 square foot health science education building due to be completed later this year. In addition to the major teaching space for all four campus colleges, the structure will house Biomedical Communications and a new multi-media library.

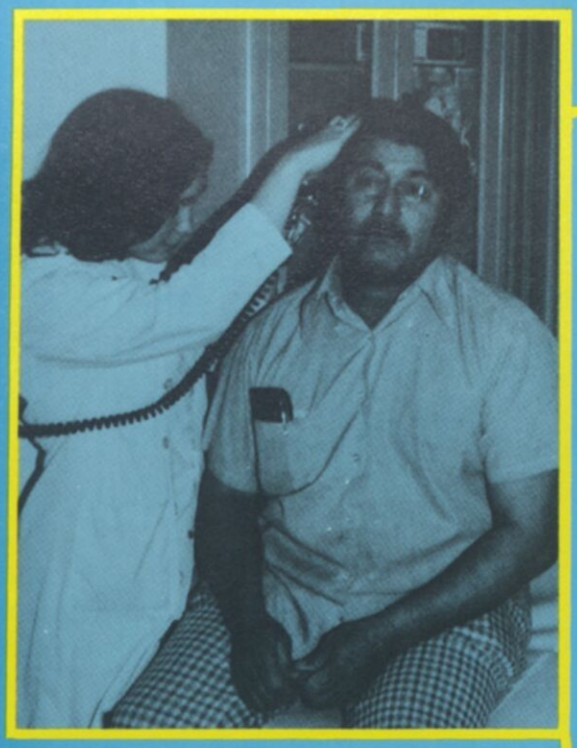
update: new



Since one of the goals of the College of Nursing is to graduate competent nurse practitioners to meet the health care needs of the state of Arkansas, the College of Nursing has established a five year nursing curriculum. Throughout the last three years of the program the knowledge, skills, and behaviors necessary for a nurse practitioner are emphasized clinically and in the classroom. During the last semester of the fifth year, the students' final clinical course is Independent Study. Prior to the beginning of this final semester, students select a health care agency where they can implement the practitioner role and thus meet the course objective and persue some of their own learning needs. Health care agencies that students have chosen are hospitals, physicians' offices, clinics, and health departments. Preceptors from the agencies have primarily been physicians, however other nurse practitioners and nurses have also functioned in this capacity. Although most students have chosen an agency and preceptor outside of Little Rock, but within Arkansas, some students do remain in Little Rock or go out of state.

While implementing the practitioner role, students must function interdependently with preceptors while developing a caseload of clients and families with whom they work. Health care is delivered with an emphasis on promotion of health, prevention of disease, maintenance of the stable chronically ill patient, minor episodic care and rehabilitation.

The Nurse Practitioner, prepared in baccalaureate and post R.N. programs, and the clinical specialist, the expert practitioner, prepared at the graduate level in the College of Nursing are involved in direct care to patients and families on the UAMS campus. Collaborating with the physician and other health providers, they provide an innovative approach to total inpatient and outpatient care, with the focus on quality and continuity.

Special programs, under the direction of Dr. Mildred Ward, were designed in the College of Medicine to prepare twenty Vietnamese refugee physicians for medical licensure in Arkansas.

The profession of pharmacy has undergone many changes in the past few years and hopes to be much more involved in the over-all care of the patient in the years to come. The new studies that have been presented by the Millis report emphasizing the need to get the pharmacy student more involved in patient care and to broaden the capabilities of the physician by utilization of the pharmacist's knowledge. The doctor will always be "the captain of the ship" but it is the hope of the pharmacy profession that the "captain" will enlarge his crew and bring more of the people involved with health care into his confidence. There has always been the criticism that the pharmac t has been over-trained for his job when in reality, as has been stated many times, he has not been over trained but has been under-uti ed by the other members of the health professions. It has come to the point where no one professional can "know it all" and must depend on resources other than himself if he is going to give the patient total health care. In the past it has always appeared that the doctor, nurse, and pharmacist were afraid to admit that they didn't know something and went merrily on their ways without consulting each other—this can no longer occur if all of these professions are to give adequate care to the patient and at the same time avoid malpractice suits that seem to be so prevalent these days.

Pharmacists and the profession of pharmacy are making an effort to get more involved with the doctor, nurse, medical technician, x-ray technician and all others providing health care to share their expertise in drug knowledge with these groups. It is hoped that in the next few years we will see all medical, nursing, as well as all other students in the health professions, working together and truly making it a team effort in health care. Hopefully this will continue once these people get into the "real world" of professional practice.

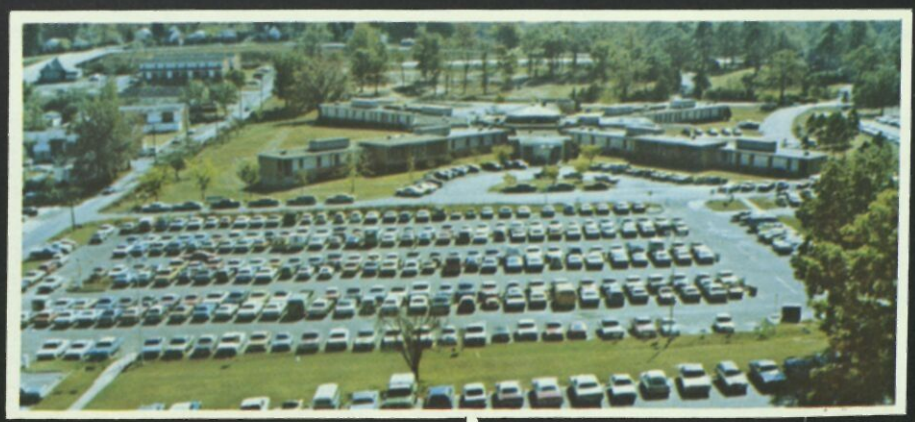
things that never change



There are few earthly things more beautiful than a University.
It is a place where those who hate ignorance may strive to know, where those who perceive truth may strive to make others see;
where seekers and learners alike banded together in the search for knowledge, will honor thought in all its finer ways,
will welcome thinkers in distress or in exile, will uphold ever
the dignity of thought and learning and will extract standards in these things.
They give to the young in their impressionable years the bond of a lofty purpose shared,
of a great corporate life
whose links will not be loosed until they die.
They give young people
that close companionship for which youth longs, and that chance of the endless discussion without which youth would seem a waste of time.
There are few earthly things more splendid
than a University.
In these days of broken frontiers and collapsing values,
when the dams are down and the floods
are making misery,
when every future looks somewhat grim and every ancient foothold has become something of a quagmire;
wherever a University stands;
it stands and shines;
wherever it exists, the free minds of men,
urged on to full and fair inquiry,
may still bring wisdom into human affairs.
JOHN MASEFIELD.

Winston K. Shorey, M.D.

Dr. Shorey brought to the University of Arkansas School of Medicine broad experience in both the practice and teaching of medicin He believed that excellence in patient care was rooted firmly in excellent training in all the sciences contributing to medicine, alloyed wit a deep sincere compassion for mankind. To this end he took pride in the strengths of the school he found here, and fostered the continued development. For those areas of weakness, he sought funds for facilities and staff development, and was successful initiating many new, excellent programs desirable in a well-rounded institution of medical learning. He encouraged each individual develop with imagination and dedication an area of competence, with the concept that an excellent school is in reality the composite individual excellences. He shared the satisfactions of those who accomplished, but did not condemn those who did not. He was stubborn man, persistent in pursuing objectives he deemed worthy, uncompromising with his standards of honesty, equity, an dependability. He considered it to be his responsibility to present the needs of the faculty and students wherever and to whomever it wa necessary. The prices he paid for some of his success never were known, nor would he want them to be.

During his almost fifteen years here, he guided the school through its greatest development in strength and quality of any comparabl period in its history. Over fifteen hundred new students were enrolled during that time, and more than eleven hundred received the degrees. This represents more than a fourth of all the graduates since the school's beginning.

Few people are endowed with those qualities which endear them to many people, but Win Shorey was one of these few. He had a dee interest in people around him, limited only by time and contact. Hobbies such as sailing, his home workshop, the out-of-doors, browsin in hardware stores, and others led him into contact with people in all walks of life. He genuine warm interest in them as individuals mad them feel they were a part of his life too.

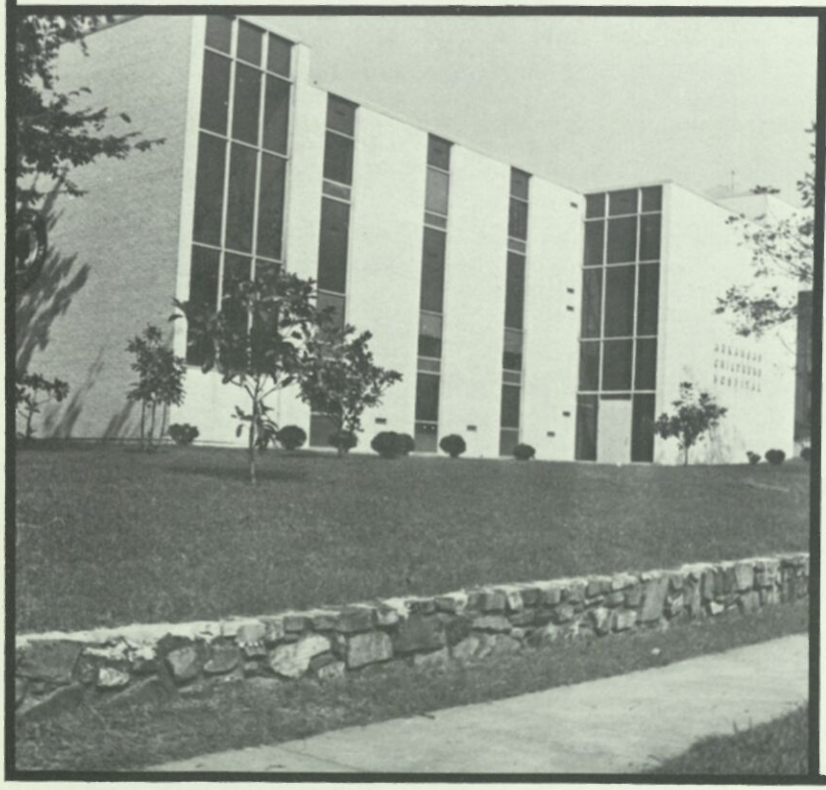
university hospital

University Hospital is the main teaching hospital for the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences. The hospital is dedicated to the basic functions of service, education and research. Presently the hospital operates 326 inpatient beds and leases an additional 33 beds from Central Baptist Hospital to better accommodate Orthopaedics, Head and Neck Cancer and Family Practice. During 1974-75 there were 15,368 admissions, 87,468 outpatient visits and 34,710 emergency visits at University Hospital. Patients from each of Arkansas' 75 counties were treated at the hospital last year. The hospital's medical staff consists of 155 active staff physicians, 289 courtesy staff physicians and 30 consulting scientists. The house staff consists of 265 residents and interns who participate in 20 approved residency programs. As the only University teaching hospital in Arkansas, University Hospital contributes greatly to the medical care of many Arkansans and to the training of health professionals who will hopefully remain within the State. Physicians, nurses, pharmacists, graduate students and health-related professionals (radiologic, medical, nuclear medicine, biomedical instrumentation and operating room technologists; dental hygienists; respiratory and physical therapists) trained at University Hospital serve as a part of the growing health care industry in Arkansas.

v.a. hospital

The Veteran's Administration Hospital is a 460-bed government facility which offers care to patients from all parts of Arkansas as well as from out of state. It has an extensive physician complement, with almost 200 faculty and 75 housestaff members to function as primary care specialists as well as teachers. Sophomore, junior and senior medical students rotate through the V.A. Hospital in many general and specialty fields of medicine. Nursing students and students in the allied health fields also do duty at the V.A. each year. The Ambulatory Care Center, newly opened at the Hospital, exposes trainees to a more generally-oriented medical practice as opposed to specialty care. The full complement of staff and services available at the V.A. ensures an intensive learning experience for students and complete medical care at all levels for patients who are attended here.

children's hospital



The Arkansas Children's Hospital is a nonprofit hospital governed by a board of voluntary trustees. It draws patients from each of Arkansas' 75 counties and embraces two goals—service and teaching—each of which it meets with well-known success. The 180 physicians in ten specialty areas, plus the 93-bed capacity, provide a fertile environment for the study of childhood illness for students in several disciplines. Junior and senior medical students rotate through the hospital for training, as also do nursing students, physical therapy students and other students in the paramedical fields from such schools as UALR and UCA. Residents and interns from the UAMS may also spend a portion of their training at ACH. Recent expansion programs such as the state burn center and the hematology-oncology center, both of which are now located at Children's Hospital, further enhance the opportunities for teaching and service. The intermingling of specialists in many fields—pediatrics, nutrition, social work and ancillary services—ensures comprehensive patient care and a teaching program of the highest quality for physicians and students alike.

state hospital

The Arkansas State Hospital is a strikingly unique facility in which more than 700 patients may be housed while being assisted to recovery from mental illness and return to a useful life. It is unique in that every feature, both architectural and operational, provides the patient with an habitat compatible with the earliest attainment of the above-mentioned objectives. The facility serves four of Arkansas' six geographical districts, each district being a drawing area of approximately 300,000 persons. The remaining two districts are served by the Benton unit of the State Hospital. The six 72-bed living units each form self-contained intensive treatment areas in which psychiatrists, psychologists, nurses, social workers and volunteer workers play an active role in helping the patient in recovery. The adjacent UAMS facilities afford advantages for consultation, teaching and research. Junior and senior medical students may choose to take part of their training at the State Hospital.

The Arkansas State Hospital is a departure, architecturally and philosophically, from the typical state mental hospital. Many feel that it is the best workable solution to the problem of returning the mentally ill to being useful, contributing citizens.

area health education centers

The Area Health Education Center concept was first introduced in Arkansas through planning undertaken by the Arkansas Regional Medical Program. Although federal funds were not awarded to initiate this program, the plans resulting from initial studies were so well thought of by the Governor and General Assembly of the State of Arkansas that state funds were appropriated to implement the AHEC program. The primary thrust of the program is to help increase and distribute manpower for primary health care throughout the state.

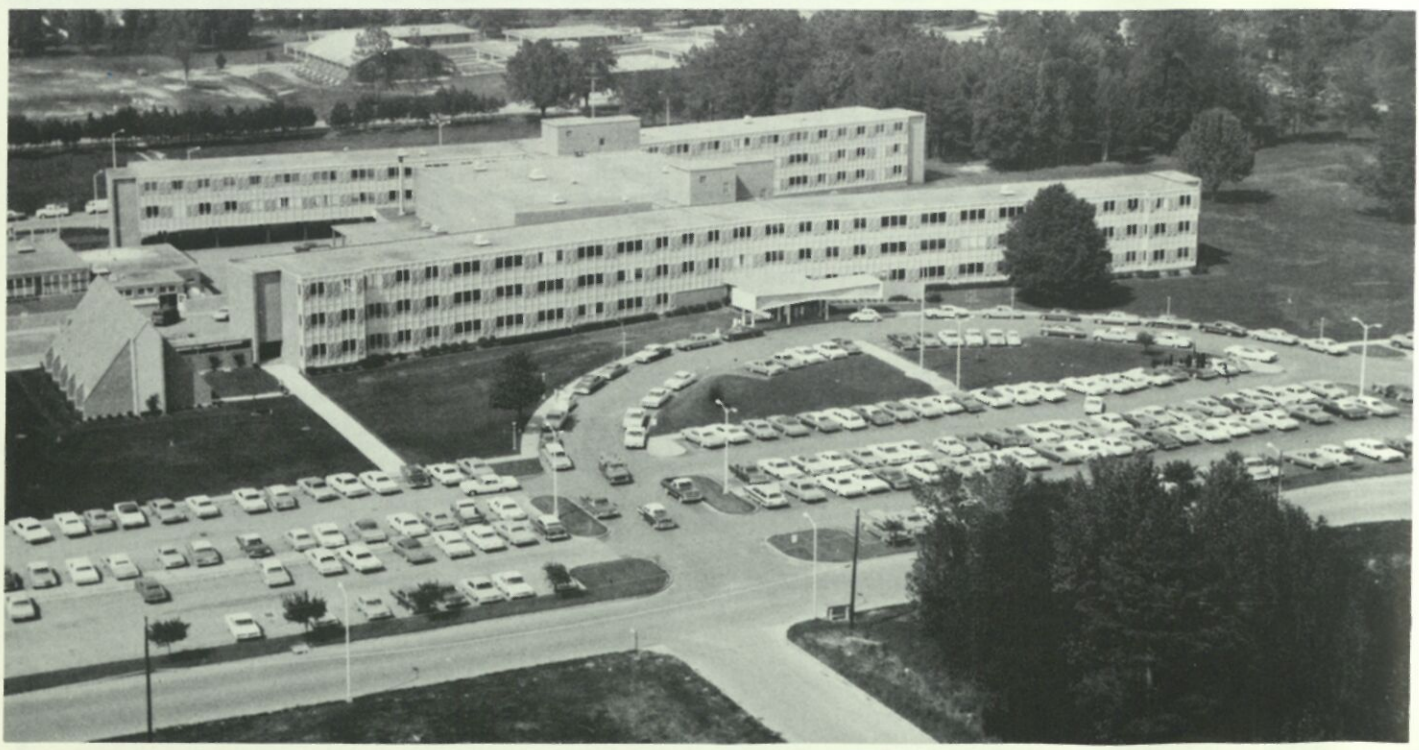
AHECs were initially established at El Dorado, Fort Smith and Pine Bluff in the first year of the program (1973-1974). Advisory boards from each AHEC community contributed in many ways toward the effective development of programs in their respective areas. AHEC Directors were recruited from each community to provide leadership to the program. In July, 1974, the first senior medical students were afforded the opportunity to experience an elective of six weeks or longer at Fort Smith, El Dorado or Pine Bluff. Residents in Internal Medicine also provided two months rotation each at the three AHECs in operation at that time. During the 1974-1975 academic year steps were taken to develop the AHECs at Jonesboro and Fayetteville. Plans provided for a senior elective at Jonesboro and Family Practice Residencies at both Fayetteville and Fort Smith.

The Class of 1976 has responded to the AHEC program with enthusiasm, making it the most popular senior six-week elective. The students had the opportunity to work in a community setting with private practitioners in many specialty fields. The AHECs offered experiences in Family Medicine, Internal Medicine, Ob-Gyn, Orthopedics, Pediatrics, Surgery, Radiology, Ophthalmology and Pediatric Cardiology. Internal Medicine residents rotated to several of the AHECs while senior students were present. The AHECs at Fort Smith and Fayetteville also provided a residency program in Family Practice.

Students were provided with furnished apartments in the AHEC area while serving in the elective. The students were afforded the opportunity to participate in the private practice of medicine with a private practitioner in his office as well as in the community hospital, providing a most valuable addition to medical education and revealing a different aspect of patient care than observed at the Medical Sciences Campus. Hopefully, the expansion and continuation of these programs will ultimately result in a desire of UAMS graduates to remain within the State to practice their healing art.

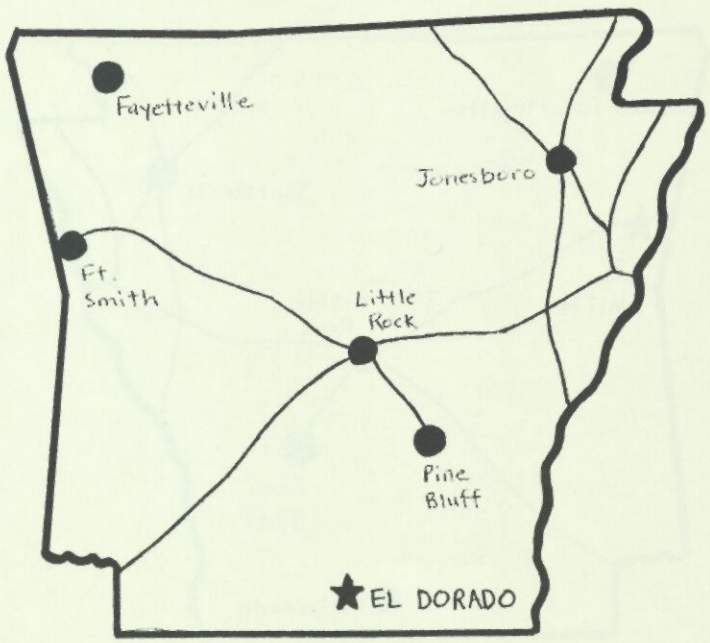
pine bluff

Established in September of 1973, the Pine Bluff AHEC provides elective programs for senior medical students, residents in internal medicine, and, beginning in 1977, residents in Family Practice. Donald L. Miller, M.D. serves as Director of the AHEC, which operates out of Jefferson Hospital, a 300-bed facility served by 72 physicians. The hospital has a complete medical and audio-visual library staffed by a UAMS-trained librarian. Other facilities in the medical community of 85,000 include the Jefferson Comprehensive Care Center, the Jefferson County Health Department, the Southeast Arkansas Mental Health Center, the Jenkins Memorial Children's Center and the Alcohol Abuse Control Center.



el dorado

James B. Weedman, M.D. serves as the Director of the El Dorado AHEC, established in November of 1973. The program provides electives for senior medical students in several specialty areas. The medical community of over 250,000 people in 12 counties is served by two hospitals: Warner Brown Hospital and Union Memorial Hospital, with a total capacity of 526 beds and a combined staff of 40 physicians. Other health facilities include four nursing homes, a City-County Health Department and the Union County Center for the Handicapped.



fort smith

Dr. J. Campbell Gilliland directs the Fort Smith AHEC, which has provided elective training for senior medical students and internal medicine residents since December of 1973 and for Family Practice Residents since July of 1975. A very extensive specialty selection for trainees is supplemented by bimonthly instruction provided by members of the UAMS faculty. Allied Health training is provided by the nearby Westark Community College. One hundred forty-seven physicians serve the medical community in two hospitals: Sparks Regional Medical Center and St. Edwards Mercy Hospital, which total 764 beds. Other facilities include two large clinics and several geriatric, nursing and rest homes.

The Jonesboro AHEC, established in December of 1974 and directed by Robert S. Cohen, M.D., offers elective programs for senior medical students in almost 20 specialty fields. The facilities there include St. Bernard's Hospital, a 240-bed hospital, and Craighead County Memorial Hospital, which are served by 62 physicians. The trade area of over 300,000 persons also benefits from a mental health center which has both inpatient and outpatient facilities.

David Pryor, Governor
State of Arkansas

GREETINGS TO STUDENTS AND STAFF AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS MEDICAL SCIENCES CAMPUS:

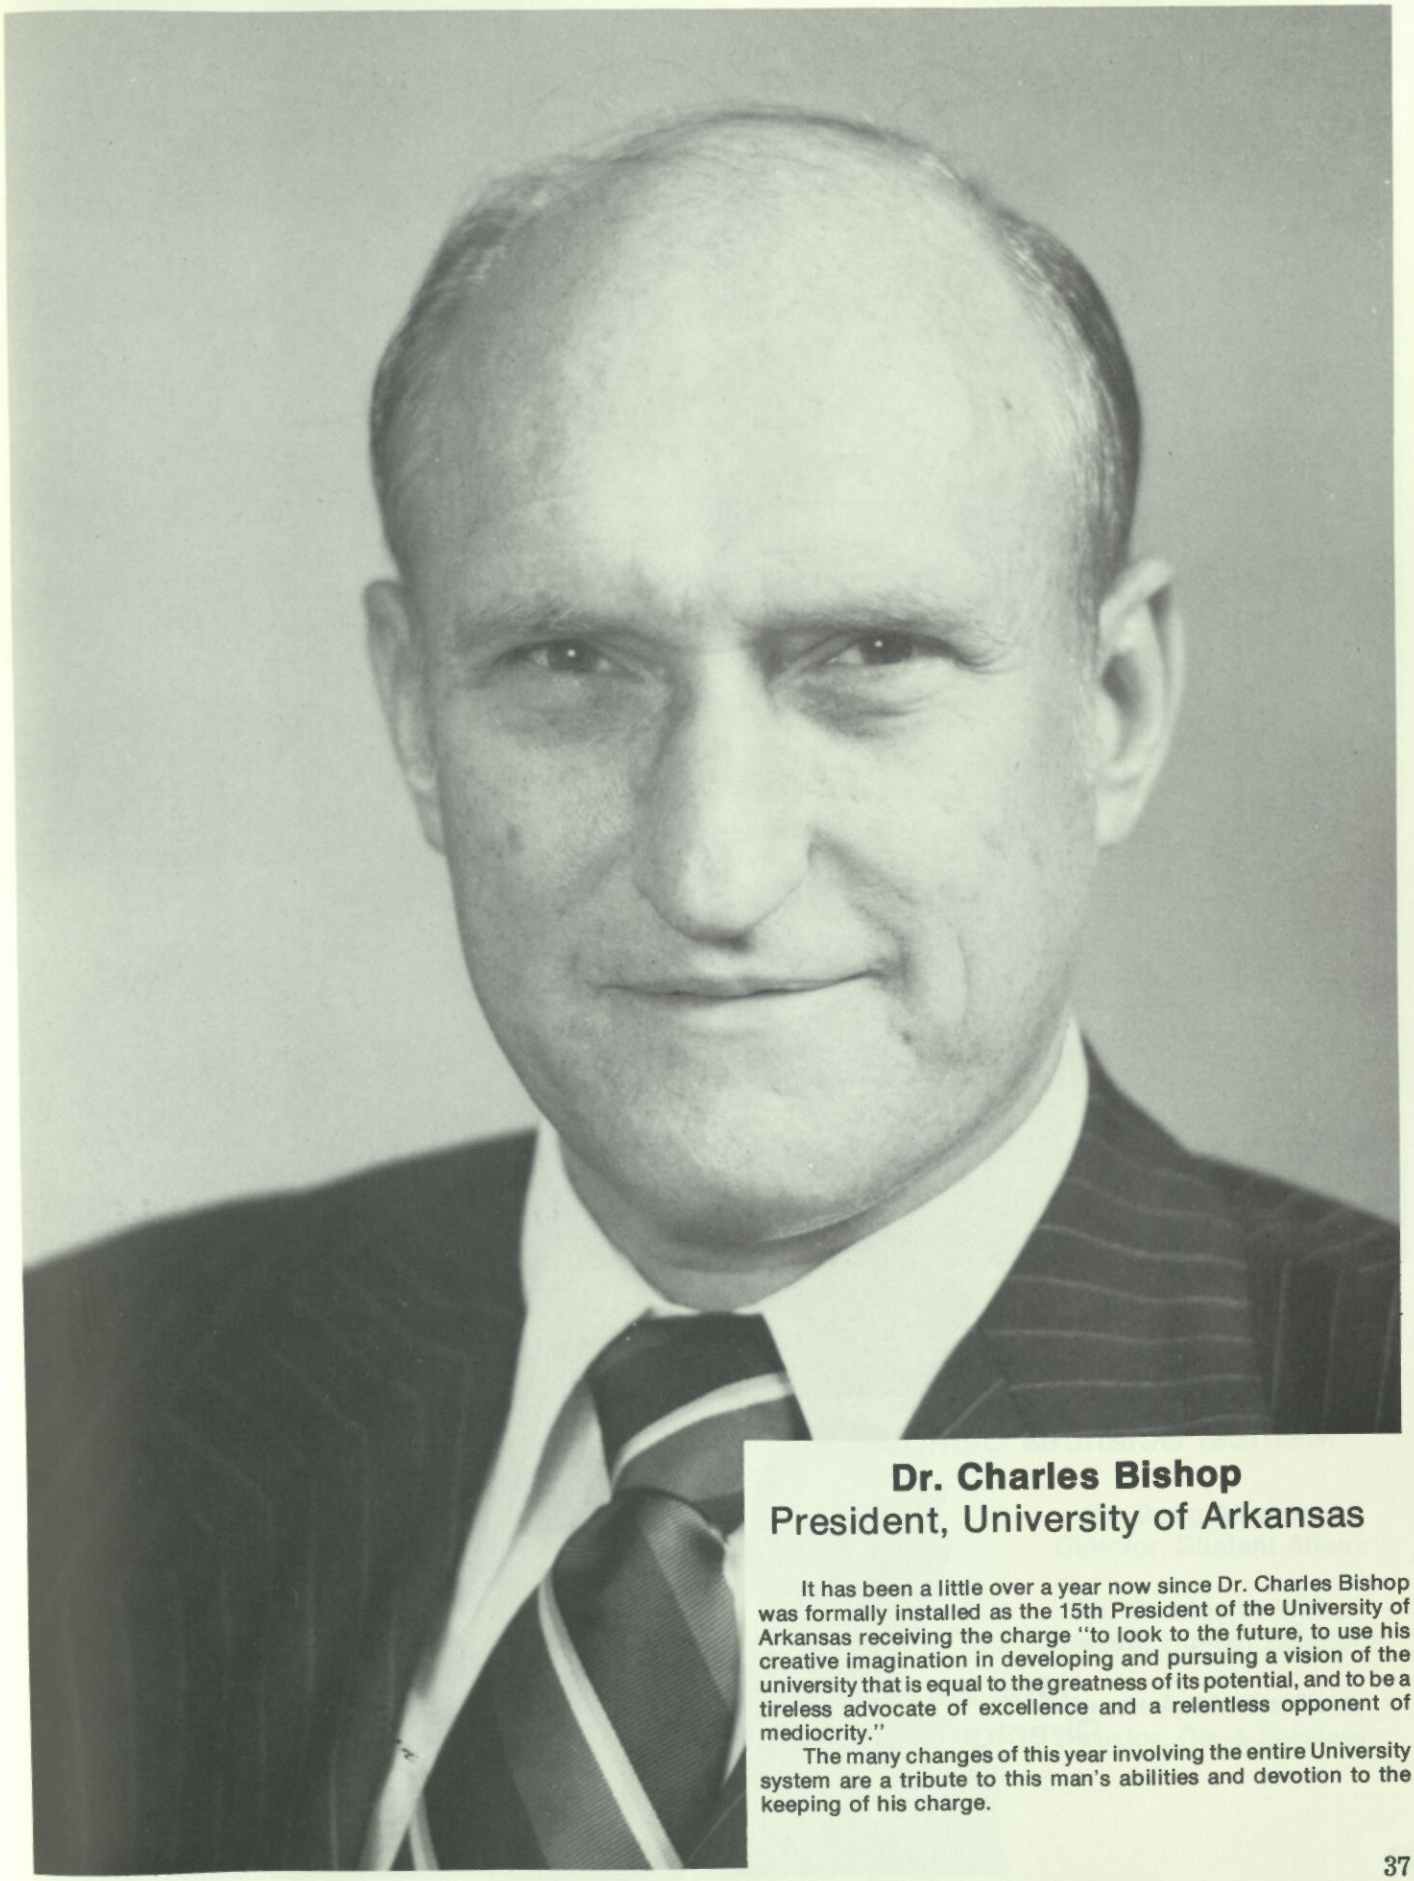
It gives me great pleasure to recognize once again the achievements and distinguished record completed by all of you in this academic year. Speaking for the people of Arkansas, I want to congratulate you and wish you well in every future endeavor.

Even more than our congratulations, we in Arkansas owe you our thanks and support for the work you are doing now and for the time and dedication you will be returning to our State in the future. We hope you will keep in mind that to be truly effective a dedication to medical sciences must include as well a commitment to the best in humanistic and social responsibility.

You have my best wishes for a long and successful career.

Yours sincerely,

David Pryor



Dr. Charles Bishop
President, University of Arkansas

It has been a little over a year now since Dr. Charles Bishop was formally installed as the 15th President of the University of Arkansas receiving the charge "to look to the future, to use his creative imagination in developing and pursuing a vision of the university that is equal to the greatness of its potential, and to be a tireless advocate of excellence and a relentless opponent of mediocrity."

The many changes of this year involving the entire University system are a tribute to this man's abilities and devotion to the keeping of his charge.

James S. Taylor, M.D.

James Sherwood Taylor was born in 1904 in Tallula, Illinois. He attended Washington University in St. Louis where he received a baccalaureate degree; and the University of Illinois where he received his doctorate of Medicine in 1931. After internship in Chicago he became a career medical officer and served at many hospitals over the world. In 1946 he was transferred to the Army's most prestigious hospital, Walter Reed in Washington, D.C., where he served as Chief of Cardiology and consultant to the Office of the Surgeon General of the United States. In 1951 he received medical retirement because of angina pectoris and came to Little Rock at the behest of an old Army friend who was at that time Director of the State Mental Hospital. Dr. Taylor quickly found retirement to be a bore and agreed to become Medical Director of the State Hospital. Soon he was volunteering his time at the University Clinics across town, and within a year was working half-time there. His quiet, analytic approach to clinical problem-solving, his enormous love for medicine, and his natural talents with students blended to make him a most effective and admired teacher. He decided that as long as his nitroglycerin supply lasted, he would commit himself full-time to the medical school. Year followed year, and his own health problem seemed neither to improve nor worsen. Popping nitro pills all the while, he became more and more fully enmeshed in providing faculty leadership, in Heart Association affairs, in community activities, and in continuing medical education. He was an active and devout churchman. But all the while his main love was for the students and resident physicians, and his patient, reasoned tutorial style and his unerring enthusiasm never failed.

In 1969 Dr. Taylor reached the age of mandatory University retirement. For still another five years, as Emeritus Professor of Medicine, he served as mentor and elder Statesman for the School. He was an adopted son, but no man ever has loved the University of Arkansas School of Medicine more, or served it more faithfully. This year the Caduceus serves as a requiem for this gentle, compassionate man who died a year ago, and who left us as peacefully as he had come to us a generation before.

Diseases Intrinsic to Medical School

During four years of medical education, several conditions not previously described in the medical literature may be observed. Their mortality is low, but their morbidity is such that students of medicine, in particular, should be alert for any manifestation of their symptoms.

At this time, it appears that no prophylaxis is possible and that infection does not confer immunity. For the purposes of discussion, these conditions will be referred to as "Diseases Intrinsic to Medical School" or DIMS.

DIMS 1 CYTT (Can You Top This?)

An endemic, relatively benign condition with highest incidence prior to examinations, prevalent among medical students who vaguely dislike their comrades.

Student A asks Student B an obscure question concerning material that may be covered in an upcoming exam (e.g. Biochemistry: Q. What is the significance of the transamidation reaction converting fructose-6-phosphate to glucosamine-6-phosphate in the enzymatic synthesis of glucosamine?). B attempts to answer the question and fails. A then corrects him and delivers a stern lecture on the importance of this key piece of trivia. B's incorrect response reminds him of how little he actually knows, how the whole world seems to have studied different material (and more of it) than he, what an unmitigated disaster the impending exam will be and what an unmitigated turkey A is.

Student A is reassured that he is the opposite of and completely unlike B.

Key Signs of CYTT: (1) "You mean you DIDN'T READ IT?" (2) Smirk.

CYTT is highly communicable. B may attempt to stump A (and any helpless bystander) by asking his own question.

DIMS 2 Wise's Swollen Brain Syndrome

A transient condition, paroxysmal in onset, whereby the medical student throws his books and journals and announces that he has read all he can possibly read, his brain has absorbed all the information it can hold and is so swollen with facts—theories—models—statistics that it will explode if he tries to pack in any more information.

Wise's Swollen Brain may occur at any time, but it is transient because the student hasn't, his brain hasn't, it isn't and it won't when he does.

DIMS 3 Simpson's Fear and Trembling and Sickness Unto Death

This infirmity is named after J. Lawrence Simpson who, upon hearing from a "reliable" classmate that the pathology instructors (as in the past) were planning to flunk half the current class, paled, clutched his notebooks and collapsed.

He was resuscitated only through vigorous CPR (Course-Passing Rumors). Since then it has been a tradition that there be at least one course or clerkship in the medical school that is reputed by each class to be so difficult that no succeeding class can approach it without dread. This course may be identified by any three of the following characteristics:

(1) An informal title (e.g. "The Hump", as in "Gotta get over 'The Hump' ")

(2) It fails more students per class than any other course in school

(3) It piles on more work per cm. brain space than any other program in the school

(4) The costs of the "required" textbooks total more than $40

(5) It is impossible to wade through the assigned reading without falling asleep

NOTICE:
Senior Medical Students . . .
January 14, 1976
DEADLINE for Receipt of RANK ORDER LIST

(6) It is taught by faculty who are exceptionally conscious of their standing in the National Boards

(7) It has an internationally known researcher who gives terrible lectures

(8) It is run by a department chairman who is either the meanest SOB on God's green earth or by a really great guy who is totally smothered by the rest of the faculty (a bunch of SOB's). Either way, nobody can help you.

Warned by preceding classes, students approach this course with great apprehension, anxious for any inside tips, study aids, anything to help them fit smoothly into the academic bell-shaped curve. Neither rationalizations ("After putting me through such a rigorous admissions procedure, they aren't about to flunk me out now"), nor arguments ("I haven't failed anything before this. Why should I fail now?"), nor sound advice ("Just do the best you can, and try not to worry about it") can shake the feeling of impending doom.

(Key Signs of Simpson's Fear:) (1) Bloodshot eyes coupled with the declaration "I never worry about exams". (2) Increased cigarette and coffee consumption; standing-room-only lavatories at exam time. (3) Epidemic rumors and a willingness to believe any bad news about the course, its instructors or the prognosis for passing it.

Remission often occurs when the student adjusts to the demands of the course or clerkship. If, however, the program is more difficult than anticipated, remission will occur only post-promotion. Resulting scars may plague the student with relapses of doubt for many years.

DIMS 4 OHMYGODITSME

Endemic to senior medical students, OHMYGODITSME is the student's reaction to the fact that he will soon have an M.D. and will be expected to deliver medical care to people. This anxiety reaction, based on awareness of his strengths and weaknesses, is intensified by the memory of interns and residents with whom the student worked—especially memories of their mistakes.

(Key Signs of OHMYGODITSME:) Palmar sweat patterns and late-night insomnia. Occasionally, the victim is found confiding to other students or having difficulty in formulating postgraduate plans. OHMYGODITSME is rarely debilitating. Time and experience will heal all internal lesions.

resident of the year

Dr. Charles Mabry
Surgery

Each year by popular vote of the Junior and Senior Medicine classes, a resident is selected for this honor as being the individual most associated with characteristics displayed by the ideal MD—one who excels not only in patient care, but in teaching and peer relationships. Congratulations, Dr. Mabry.

student council

The UAMS College of Medicine Student Council is a body composed of two elected representatives from each class of the four year school, plus a slate of officers composed of other students. They are funded by appropriations generated as a percentage of student tuition. Specific responsibilities of the Council are flexible and range from such non-academic affairs as campus safety and crime prevention, revision of existing student health insurance coverage and public relations to academic matters such as the recent healing arts examination controversy. Traditionally, the Council sponsors the annual "skit dance" in the springtime, where faculty, housestaff and "interesting classmates" are lampooned.

The UAMS Medical Dames is an organization composed of the wives of medical students of all four classes. The group was begun in the year 1916 in an effort to promote fellowship among wives of students and to carry out worthwhile projects. In 1958, members voted to join the Student American Medical Association and the official name of the organization became the University of Arkansas Women's Auxiliary of the Student American Medical Association.

The Medical Dames have several noteworthy goals and objectives. (1) They serve as a source of information, acquainting wives of medical students with the Medical Center and with the Medical profession. (2) They perform various services around the UAMS. (3) They function to meet the social needs of wives.

During the 1975-76 year, the Medical Dames reached these objectives in various ways. Service was given through assistance at the annual Physicians' Fair, Red Cross collections and Freshman Family Day; four parties for pediatric patients were given during the year. Some of the members served as volunteer workers at the University Hospital. Social needs were met both by wives-only and by wives-and-husbands functions. Ice cream socials, new member picnics, interest groups, wine-tasting parties and Christmas dessert-tasting parties were given during the year. Funds for social and service functions were raised through various means, including the annual Fashion Show, Christmas mini bazaar and birthday cake sales.

class of 1976

As graduates of this Class of 1976, we share one thing among all 47 of us, our education. For the past three years we have experienced many good things together. We have shared in each other's happiness and saddness; and helped each other solve one another's problems. We are probably closer to each other than some are to their brothers and sisters. But now we are graduating; and we are ready! There is a time to every thing under heaven; and now is our time . . . As Certified Nurse Practitioners we are prepared to place our stamp on the Health Care Delivery System and on the Nursing Profession. May God bless us as we go.

Just as the graduates of this college are pioneers in the TRUE practice of the science of professional Nursing, so is this faculty. They have instilled in each one of us a broad spectrum of ideas, skills, and knowledge. They have prepared us for a practice with a spirit of independence tempered wisely with timeliness. They have taught us much, but also have taught us what we do not know. We are Nurse Practitioners because they were Nurse Practitioners first. They let down the veils of authority and the walls of educational tradition to us. By doing this, they say that students are individuals with specific needs, and that real education is not limited to books, policies, and guidelines. They teach; but they also share. We recognize them for what they have given to us.

. . . . professional nursing is a clearly formulated health service to individuals, families, and communities, and that needs which require nursing intervention may range widely within the dimensions of illness and on wellness.
. . . . providing a stable, but flexible curriculum framework which allows changes in learning experiences to evolve . . . will evoke productive student involvement and self direction. The teacher's major purpose is assisting students to identify and develope potentials and strengths. The student as a person and as a learner is the major concern of the faculty. Student learning is believed to be promoted by an environment that is non-restricted and non-authoritative. . . .
The teacher-learner process as described is believed to be a key force in motivating graduates to value and pursue a continuous search for knowledge in the nursing profession and to desire continuous fulfillment in personal-professional identity.

ORGANIZATIONAL THINGS

The College of Nursing has many committees of which student representation is a vital part. However, the most functional is the Student-Faculty Coordinating Committee, shown below. They work with any and all problems and student concerns. Gail Shields from the faculty and Robbie Goodwin from the Student Body serve as co-chairman. Also, the Student Nurses Association is very active in this school. Due to technical problems the editor was not able to include them here. Martha Hudson, Mary Lynn McMahon, David Holman, Connie Hubbard, Cindy Crone, Chuck Miers, and Candy Smith are officers in the SNA.

THE MEDICO

GARY BARGER WILLIAM ALLEN

The Medico staff for 1975-1976 has attempted to carry on the fine tradition of previous years. We have tried to print articles which we felt would be entertaining and enlightening to our student readers. We attempted to discuss in our editorials, issues which were felt to be of importance, such as the Healing Arts Exam. We recognized our responsibility to keep the students abreast of what the administration was doing by inviting all Deans to contribute articles to the Medico. We also had Chancellor James Dennis express his views as to the long range planning for the UAMS campus. We found out this year, as we are sure all previous staffs have, that the publishing of the Medico is both hard work and fun. We hope that you have enjoyed the Medico as much this year as in the past.

The Associated Student Government has moved from its obscure role as "party planner" to become an effective voice for UAMS students. 1975-76 has proven to have been a productive year for the student government in several ways:

(1) The ASG still carried out its entertainment role by sponsoring dances, lectures and other entertainment.
(2) The ASG has played an effective part in increasing security measures for Jeff Banks Student Union and adjacent parking areas.
(3) The Student Government requested controlled tennis court lights and a new sidewalk; both were immediately installed.
(4) A vacuum cleaner was purchased by ASG for free use for all dormitory residents.
(5) Three color TV's were purchased for the solariums on three of the floors in Jeff Banks.
(6) Plans are underway for construction of a new antenna system and wiring of all rooms and apartments in Jeff Banks to improve TV reception.
(7) A new Dorm Council was formed to channel the concerns of dorm residents directly to the Chancellor's office.

Time was the limiting factor, as the ASG was given top priority and full cooperation by all levels of the administration.

We the executive officers, speaking on behalf of the Associated Student Government, wish to acknowledge this cooperation and to express our appreciation to Drs. Charles Prigmore and Marvin Martin, who were responsive to students' problems and complaints. We hope that this spirit of cooperation will continue with succeeding ASG representatives and we hope that representatives will recognize the value of this relationship.

THE SOLUTION TO A LOT OF PROBLEMS WHEN YOU'RE JUST GETTING STARTED

TCB PHYSICIANS & DENTISTS LOAN PROGRAM

What is it? This TCB Loan Program is a method of borrowing the capital a physician or dentist needs to establish his practice. Any physician or dentist practicing in Pulaski County may take advantage of this unique financial service.

What are the terms? You may borrow up to $5,000 on your signature with up to three years for repayment.

Loans for more than $5,000 may require the pledge of collateral. If collateral is required, your assets remain intact and in your name, while the monthly payments liquidate the loan. Loans supported by collateral may also be protected by Creditor's Life Insurance.

IMPORTANT FEATURE:

You may elect to delay the first payment until 6 months after the date of the note. This can be an important consideration in your early months of practice when income may be small.

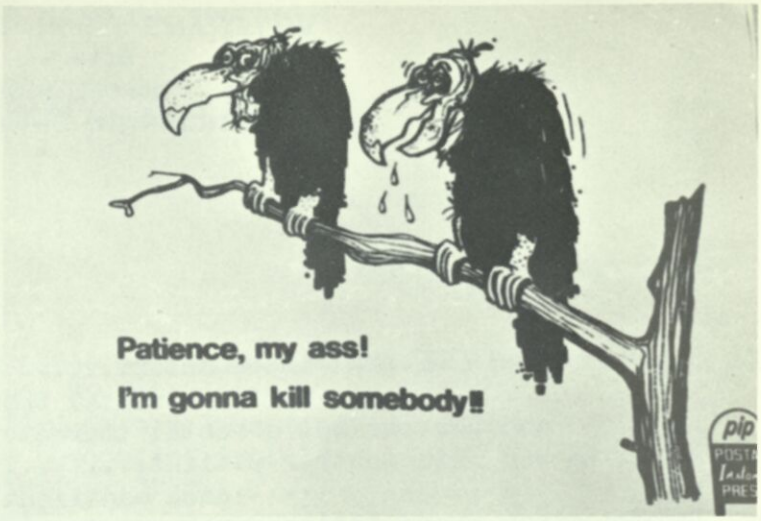
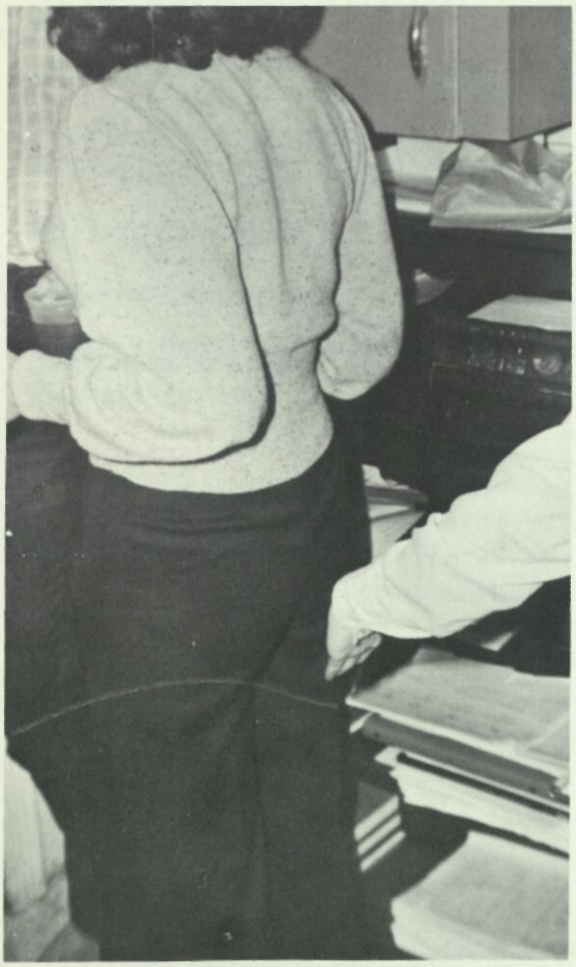
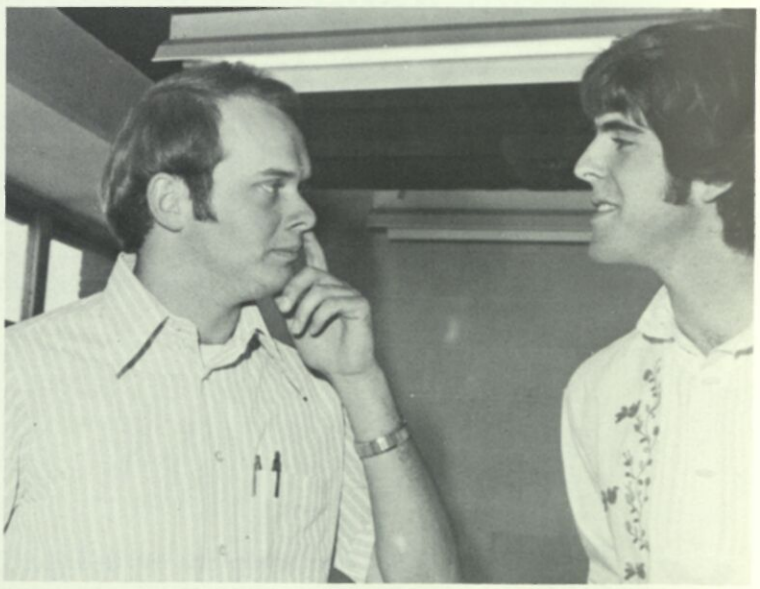
I'm so happy here I could just shit.



Interviewing & Examining with the European technique.



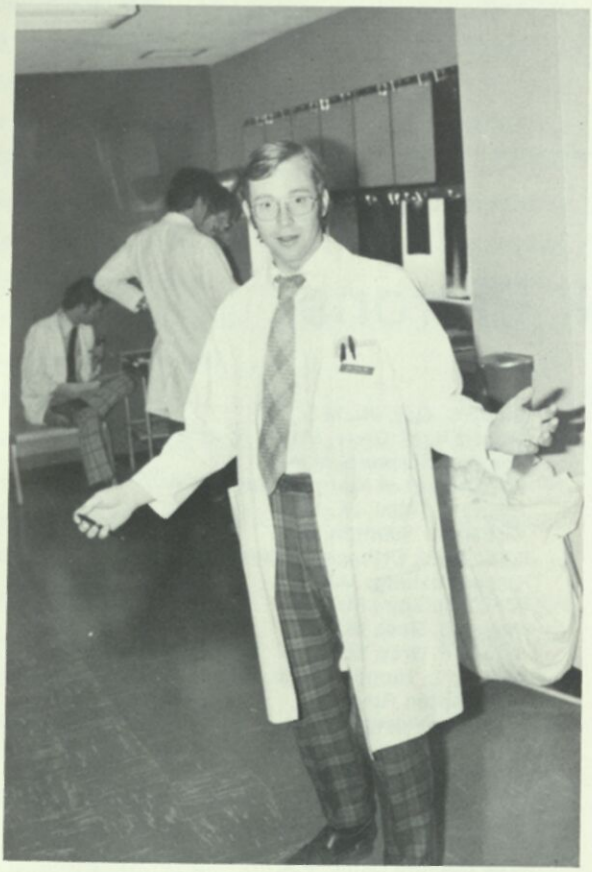
Guaranteed to produce a positive straight-leg-raising reflex.



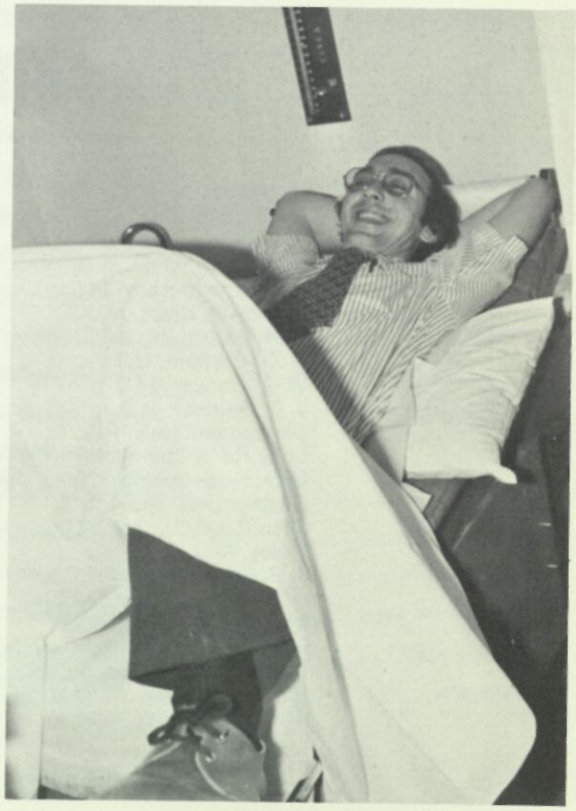
And then I said to Dr. Read . . .

The Mad Butcher.

Thank you for not smoking.



Honest! Dr. Redman said it was this long.



Will Dr. Thomas be examining me again today?

As we write this closing thought, it is mid-December and much is left to be done in the completion of this publication. The goal of the 1976 Caduceus has been to document life here at "the Mecca" along with a few of the changes which we feel are so significant (and abundant) in this time of transition. Have we succeeded? You be the judge.

There have been times when we have felt that many of the goals have been approached "in spite of" certain individuals rather than because of them. At any rate, we have tried, and to those of you who have tried with us — our staff, administration, friends, etc., A BIG THANKS!

It has been a family affair.

Ken & Steve
